

IFPEN contributes to public R&I policy-making and structuring on a European, national or regional level.

This involvement is reflected by:

- a contribution to the definition of research and innovation strategies and the development of road maps;
- participation in various energy forecasting studies;
- technical and economic insight for all its fields of activity;
- support in the operational translation of strategic directions.

In addition, IFPEN offers its institutional scientific expertise to public authorities, industrial players, local authorities and judicial bodies.

Public policy support

Link to the web page :